A Festive Favorite

Curly and delicate, ribbon candy was created centuries ago by European confectioners, who molded long, sticky strips of candy around their thumbs to make festive, edible decorations for their shops. Today, automatic crimping machines are used to shape the sweets, which have become a traditional holiday treat in the U.S.

Remember When: Lionel Trains

What began as a store window display in 1900 quickly raced to the top of many wish lists. After customers asked to buy the electric toy train—originally designed to advertise other products—creator Joshua Lionel Cowen's new business was on the fast track to success. The models' realistic details, variable speeds and array of accessories added to the appeal of Lionel model trains, which hit their peak of popularity in the 1950s and remain a favorite among enthusiasts.

Stay a Kid at Heart

"The lovers of life, they are children at heart always in their wonder and delight." —Elizabeth Goudge
